DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 4 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 4 claims "said reboiler separator liquid stream" which has not been claimed in claim 4 or claim 1, from which it depends. A reboiler separator liquid stream has been claimed in claim 2. Should claim 4 depend from claim 2? Claim 7 claims " a secondary reflux drum". This is confusing since no primary reflux drum has been claimed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 5,8 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Valencia et al.

Valencia et al discloses a separation method for separating carbon dioxide from natural gas by liquefying the carbon dioxide in a distillation column (104) and separating the overhead in a membrane separation process (110) and compressing the permeate (112) and returning the compressed stream to the distillation column as reflux (line 14). In regard to claim 8, valve 120 serves to reduce the pressure of the liquid carbon dioxide removed from the column. In regard to claim 9, see lines 13-22 of column 6 which states that the carbon dioxide stream may be used for heat exchange in the system.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 10 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Valencia et al.

Valencia et al disclose applicant's basic inventive concept, a separation system for separating carbon dioxide from hydrocarbons which uses a distillation column and a membrane for the overhead of the column, substantially as claimed with the exception of pumping the bottom product of the column. It is considered well within the scope of the ordinary practitioner in the art to pump a liquid product to ensure a liquid product at a higher pressure. Thus, it would have been obvious to an ordinary practitioner in the art to add a pump to the liquid product line to ensure a liquid product at the proper pressure. Valencia et al shows a reboiler separator at 118.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claim 6 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claims 4 and 7 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claims 1-3 and 11-18 are allowed.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Daus et al, Sauer et al, Karode et al and Colling et al show distillation and membrane separation systems for carbon dioxide. The article from the first IDS has been added to the 892 form.
